

quivered: If something quivered, it shook, shivered, or trembled rapidly.

The puppy quivered while she was taking her bath.

wailed: If you wailed, you let out a long loud cry because you were upset about something or in pain.

The fire truck siren wailed as it rushed down the street.

scattered: If things or people scattered, they separated and went off in different directions.

The dominoes scattered on the table while I was setting up the math game.

1st L 27

lonesome: If you are lonesome, you feel lonely and want company.

I feel lonesome when I am home and no one is there.

elated: If you are elated, you are very happy and excited about something.

I am elated when my students succeed on a test!

1st L 27

hopeless: If something seems hopeless, you feel as if there is no chance that what you want to happen will happen.

I try to remember how lucky I am when I start feeling hopeless about something.

D Palm 2010